Great Painter series

V.V.S.Manian

Archibald Thorburn was a Scottish painter and bird illustrator. His paintings are mostly in water colour. He is the world's greatest wildlife artist of all times. He spent his time visiting the forest of Gaick near Kingussie in Invernesshire and painting the birds in their natural habitat. Even by the age of 30 in 1890, he was regarded as the best in Britain.

Archibald Thorburn was born in Lasswade near Edinburgh on 31st May 1860. He was the fifth son of Robert Thorburn, the leading miniaturist painter of that time, and Queen Victoria admired his works. He was also a favourite of both Edward VII and King George.

Young Archibald received his early training from his father. Even as a child Thorburn showed exceptional artistic talent, and by age 12, he was producing some astounding watercolours, and pen and ink drawings.

It was in 1882, that Thorburn's first coloured plates appeared in W F Swayslands' 'Familiar Wild Birds'. His last paintings were posthumously published in 1927 in Archer & Goldman's 'The Birds of British Somaliland and the Gulf of Aden'.

The monumental work

he carried out for Lord Lilford between 1885-98, in which he completed 268 superlative water-colours of coloured figures of the birds of British islands made him the best and finest artist of the world.

Thorburn first exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1880 and continued to do so until 1900. By this time, he had difficulty to see and decided to focus more upon illustrative work and private commissions. In 1896, he married Constance Mudde and they had one son, Philip Archibald. Thorburn moved to Hascombe in 1902 and lived a quiet life recording scene of wildlife set amongst the countryside. Thorburn designed the first Christmas card for the Royal Society for protection of Birds in 1899. He died on October 9, 1935 in Hascombe, UK. His works are held in collection of the National Museum of Wildlife Art in Jackson Hole, WY and the Fleming Collection in London.

Netflix ropes in 'Game of Thrones' creators

Los Angeles, Aug 8: "Game of Thrones" showrunners David Benioff and Dan B Weiss are heading to Netflix with an exclusive multi-year deal for new shows and films.

According to Deadline, the duo were courted by WarnerMedia, their previous home HBO's forthcoming digital platform, Amazon, Disney and Netflix when the epic fantasy drama was nearing its finale.

Sources said the agreement is in the 9-figure range like those of previously signed by creators like Shonda Rhimes and Ryan Murphy with Netflix.

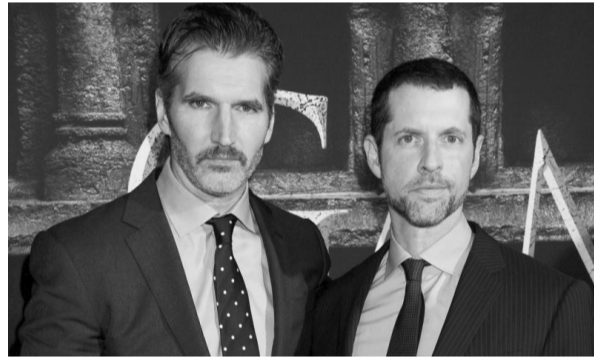

Benioff and Weiss are expected to write, produce and direct new series and movies for the streaming platform under an overall global deal.

"We are thrilled to welcome master storytellers David Benioff and Dan Weiss to Netflix. They are a creative force and have delighted audiences worldwide with their epic storytelling. We can't wait to see what their imaginations will bring to our members," said Netflix chief content officer Ted Sarandos.

The Emmy-winning partners added they were looking forward to working with Netflix after their longstanding and fruitful relationship with HBO.

"We've had a beautiful run with HBO for more than a decade and we're grateful to everyone there for always making us feel at home. Over the past few months we've spent many hours talking to Cindy Holland and Peter Friedlander, as well as Ted Sarandos and Scott Stuber.

"We remember the same shots from the same '80s movies; we love the same books; we're excited about the same storytelling possibilities. Netflix has built something astounding and unprecedented, and we're honoured they inited us to join them," Benioff and Weiss said.

The duo are working on one of the next "Star Wars" trilogies, to which they are attached as creators, writers and producers.

Benioff and Weiss have also penned a Kurt Cobain project for Universal and are said to adapt "Dirty White Boys", a prison-break story, for Fox/Disney.

Shah Rukh's Betaal, which also marks the actor's second collaboration with Netflix is produced by Blumhouse, is set in a remote village that becomes the theatre of a breathless battle when a two-century-old Betaal, a British Indian Army officer, and his battalion of zombie redcoats are unleashed. With Indian police pitted against the undead army, hapless villagers are trapped in a horrific conflict. Betaal comes from Red Chillies Entertainment, in collaboration with Ghoul's Patrick Graham as writer, director and showrunner, along with Nik

Mai revolves around 47-year-old wife-and-mother, Sheel, who finds herself accidentally sucked into a rabbit hole of violence and power, following a personal tragedy. The series is penned by Atul Mongia along with Tamal Sen, Amita Vyas, with Sudip Sharma as a creative producer.

On speaking about this Anushka said that "This is my second collaboration with Netflix after Bulbul and we are again looking to disrupt the kind of content audiences are consuming. We at Clean Slate Films have been dedicated to making clutter-breaking, powerful stories since our first production and we are looking forward to push the content envelope. The creative freedom to be able to translate these stories to screens that reach a global audience is exciting for us, which is why Netflix is such an important partner".
